Anti-Bribery Legislation in Brazil: Issues and Challenges Moving Forward

Thursday, July 19, 2012

8:00 a.m. to 10:00 a.m.

PwC Auditorium

1730 Pennsylvania Avenue NW

Washington, D.C. 20006

Speakers

- Fernando Palma, Compliance Manager, Office of Compliance and Ethics at Archer Daniels Midland (Brazil)
- Bruno Maeda, Co-chair of the Anti-Corruption Compliance Committee of the Brazilian Institute of Business Law (IBRADEMP)
- Carlos Ayres, Co-chair of the Anti-Corruption Compliance Committee of the Brazilian Institute of Business Law (IBRADEMP)

Moderator

Amy Conway-Hatcher, Partner at Kaye Scholer (Washington, D.C.)

This panel, moderated by Amy Conway-Hatcher, partner at Kaye Scholer (Washington, D.C.), will discuss the anti-bribery legislation currently before the Brazilian Congress, how that legislation addresses liability for corporations whose agents and employees commit corrupt acts, and the impact of the legislation on both foreign and Brazilian companies who do business locally and internationally.

The panel will feature Fernando Palma, Office of Compliance and Ethics at Archer Daniels Midland (Brazil), Bruno Maeda and Carlos Ayres, the co-chairs of the Anti-Corruption and Compliance Committee of the Brazilian Institute of Business Law, who will provide an overview of the anti-bribery risks and challenges faced by multinational companies that operate in Brazil and discuss key issues, both generally and in light of the draft legislation, that companies should focus on when implementing and monitoring local compliance programs.
